Message from the Executive Associate Assistant

Nadine Bob Here, I am excited to announce that I have been hired as the Xaxlip Administration Associate Assistant. My start date was the last week of January 2024. I will be in the office 3 days a week. My days will reflect the Chief and Council Schedule.

I enjoyed working with the Settlement Fund, but I felt like it was time to move on from there with a good heart and mind.

Update on First Nations Drinking Water Applications, as of today, we have been trying to straighten out the Map for all residents on reserve as there are only a few locations on the reserve that have been registered for this process.

- We apologize to everyone, but our current council is getting it figured out.
- I've been helping members with their applications
- If you receive anything back stating you have missed information please email your information back to them, also call them and let them know you have sent VIA email.
- Most missed information is your address, please write in your physical address on your form, (example) 15021 Fountain Valley Road

Settlement Fund Applications can be brought to the office, and they will hand them in to the appropriate people who are taking care of the Settlement Funds.

B.C. responds to first cases of chronic wasting disease in deer

<https://news.gov.bc.ca/30237>

The Province is responding to the first cases of chronic wasting disease in British Columbia, found in two deer samples from the Kootenay Region.

Chronic wasting disease is an infectious and fatal disease affecting species in the cervid family, such as deer, elk, moose and caribou.

There is no direct evidence that the disease can be transmitted to humans and there have been no cases of the disease in humans. However, to prevent any potential risk of transmission or illness, Health Canada and the World Health Organization recommend people not eat meat or other parts of an animal infected with chronic wasting disease.

Anyone who sees a deer, elk, moose or caribou exhibiting any symptoms – weight loss, drooling, poor coordination, stumbling, or generally sick with no obvious reason – is asked to report it to the 24/7 Report All Poachers and Polluters Line (1 877 952-7277) or the B.C. Wildlife Health Program.

The two cases were identified south of Cranbrook. The first sample was from a harvested adult male mule deer. The second sample was from an adult female white-tailed deer that was struck on the road. The diagnosis was confirmed by the Canadian Food Inspection Agency reference laboratory on Jan. 31, 2024.

In response to the disease being detected in neighbouring jurisdictions, the Province established a surveillance and response plan for chronic wasting disease to lessen the risk of the disease spreading in B.C.

In accordance with the surveillance and response plan, the provincial wildlife veterinarian is leading the response with support and input from the chronic wasting disease advisory committee and regional working groups, which include First Nations, stakeholders, experts on chronic wasting disease and other partners.

Early response activities will be delivered within an initial response area (10-kilometre radius from confirmed case) and will focus on confirming details of the situation and minimizing disease transmission and spread. People in the initial response area should remain attentive for further directions, including deer feeding in the area and the handling of carcasses.

Planning your garden for Spring?

As you begin to prepare for spring gardening by planning what you will plant, it's crucial to be mindful and ensure you won't be planting any invasive species. Invasive species can easily get loose from gardens by spreading their seeds or roots. Your neighbours might not like it if your Japanese knotweed is found on their side of the fence causing cracks in their driveway. You might think that Oxeye Daisy will stay put until one of those town deer eat it and "deposit" into a local forest. Be careful of bringing soil or compost into your garden beds because they may contain invasive plant seeds. Many last in the soil for at least a few years and if it's that awful Parasitic Dodder, those seeds can last over 60 years and pop up when the conditions are just right.

The Lillooet PlantWise Guide

Created in partnership by LRISS and Splitrock Environmental Native Plant Nursery, the Lillooet Plantwise Guide is an excellent resource for planning your garden. The guide is intended to provide gardeners and landscapers in the Lillooet Region with information on how to identify the top invasive garden plants while offering native alternatives to "Grow Instead".

Find the guide at lriiss.ca/resources-and-links

In the guide, find beautiful native and non-invasive options for your garden.

PICTURE PERFECT

After living in the remote wilderness of Kentucky all his life, an old hillbilly decided it was time to visit the big city. In one of the stores he went into he picked up a mirror and looked in it. Not knowing what it was, he remarked, "How about that! It's a picture of my daddy."

He bought the "picture" but on the way home he remembered his wife, Loretta, didn't like his father. So he hung it in the barn, and every morning before leaving for the fields, he would go there and look at it.

Loretta began to get suspicious of these many trips to the barn. One day, after her husband left, she searched the barn and found the mirror. As she looked into the glass, she fumed, "So that's the ugly old woman he's been seeing."

* You know more of a road by having traveled it than by all the conjectures in the world.

—William Hazlitt (1778-1830)

* By believing passionately in something that still does not exist, we create it. The nonexistent is whatever we have not sufficiently desired.

ROUGH STUFF

Little Jimmy came home from school with rumpled clothes, a black eye and numerous bruises and scratches. His horrified mother inspected him for serious injury, then offered a concerned rebuke.

"Jimmy. How many times have I told you not to play with those bully boys."

Jimmy looked at his mother in disbelief. "Do I really look like I've been playing with anybody?"

A SIMPLE TRUTH

You spend the first two years of your kids' life teaching them to walk and talk. Then you spend the next 16 years telling them to sit down and shut up.

* To live we must conquer incessantly, we must have the courage to be happy.

—Frederic Amiel (1821-81)

* We often take for granted the very things that most deserve our gratitude.

—Cynthia Ozick (1928-)

* Who is wise? He that learns from everyone. Who is powerful? He that governs his passions. Who is rich? He that is content. Who is that? Nobody.

—Benjamin Franklin (1706-90)

CAPSULE SERMONS

* The trouble with experience is that it usually teaches you something you really didn't want to know.

* Life is pleasant. Death is peaceful. It's the transition that's troublesome.

* The individual who knows the score about life sees difficulties as opportunities.

* About the only thing you can do on a shoestring today is trip.

* Patience is the ability to idle your motor when you feel like stripping your gears.

* No wishbone ever took the place of a backbone.

* It's a good friend who praises you when you aren't there.

* There are only two mistakes one can make along the road to truth; not going all the way, and not starting.

* Success is better measured not so much by the position attained, but by the obstacles that were overcome.

* Trust your hunches. They're often based on facts filed away just below the conscious level.
